

I am outraged that you would consider the Consumer Bankers Association's attempt to weaken Indiana's telephone privacy laws. I pay for my phone. My right to privacy outweighs the need for banks and credit card companies to attempt to force their products on me. If I want their services, I will call them. Thank you, Donna Garrison